Organic Seed Statement

To whom it may concern:

Prairie Creek Seed has been and continues to be involved in organic and biological seed development and distribution. We encourage the continued improvement in seed hybrids and varieties that improve the quality and yield. Prairie Creek Seed is committed to finding the top of the line varieties while keeping the best interest of the farmers.

Currently, great strides have been made with organic corn hybrids for yield and agronomics, plus nutrition for livestock. Organically produced small grains and soybeans have been greatly improved and the offerings are more diverse.

However, forage and grass species have not achieved the same level of advancements in genetics. While a few of the varieties currently on the market are better than the commodity varieties most are not adapted to the Midwest and do not have the quality that is needed to assist farms in economic sustainability.

We strive to find the very best forages, grasses, clovers, and cover crops. The varieties Prairie Creek Seed selects are adapted to the Midwest and are tested in the United States for quality and performance. Prairie Creek Seed has, and will continue to, source and grow forages organically. Producing varieties at acceptable yield and quality standards for the price to be suitable to the current market has been difficult.

Please get in touch if you have any other questions. We would be happy to discuss any of this further.

Sincerely,

Karl Dallefeld
President
